Course offered on the poetry of Gerard Manley Hopkins

The Rev. Byron Stuhlman plans to offer a course on the poetry of Gerard Manley Hopkins after the 10:00am service on Sundays from September 12 to October 10 (5 sessions). Below is a description of the course and he will prepare handouts:

Gerard Manley Hopkins, a convert to Roman Catholicism who became a Jesuit priest, is perhaps the most original of the late Victorian English poets. His use of "sprung rhythm" rather than the standard metrical forms of English poetry has had a profound influence on modern poets such as T. S. Eliot, W. H. Auden, and Dylan Thomas. His arresting use of language, his sensitive appreciation of nature, and his religious insight makes him a poet well worth reading. His poems are not easy to read, but well worth the effort. We will look first at some of his best-known nature poems. Then we will at his "terrible sonnets" or poems of desolation, when he struggled with depression during his years in Ireland. We will conclude by looking at his first major poem, "The Wreck of the Deutschland," in many ways his most difficult poem.
